Women’s voices on gender parity

Any female lawyer who juggles family and career will gain new respect for the early years of U.S. Supreme Court Justice Ruth Bader Ginsburg, chronicled in the 2018 documentary RBG. One of nine women in a class of more than 500 at Harvard Law School in 1956, Ginsburg was the first female member of the Harvard Law Review. She was caregiver for a two-year-old daughter and her husband Marty, who was undergoing cancer treatment. Let that sink in for a moment: Harvard Law. Toddler. Husband with cancer.

Lawyers today rely on a formal support system that includes family leave and part-time work, and the career/family juggle is far easier than in Ginsburg’s day. But the legal industry still struggles with a lack of female lawyers in senior partnership and law firm governance roles; the issues of retention and pay equity, and the paucity of female litigators who take the lead chair at trials.

The fight for gender parity is dear to many of the 114 women who grace the 2019 list of Notable Women in Law. Like Ginsburg, these attorneys juggle distinguished careers, family, exceptional civic activities—and are steely warriors against gender discrimination.

“Change must start at the top. To take a page from the Notorious RBG, advancement opportunities will expand for all female lawyers when managing partners and other management positions in law firms are filled by women,” noted one of women on this year’s list.

That comment was one of many insightful points made in response to a request Crain’s made to this year’s class. Anonymously identify one change the legal profession can make to expand advancement opportunities for female lawyers. Among their candid recommendations, these attorneys stress that it’s all about the numbers.

“Even though my firm makes efforts towards diversity and inclusion, I am often the only female partner in discussions and in the office practice group,” writes one lawyer. “We need to do better encouraging women to stay at Big Law by supporting their choices.” Adds another: “Set parity goals and make law firm and practice leaders accountable for achieving them for mid-level and senior associates, partnership elevations; partner retention; partner compensation; and credit for contributions.”

At Greenberg Traurig, Shareholder Barbara Kaplan calls her firm a meritocracy where 21% of executive committee members are female. “But it’s not enough,” said Kaplan. “There are still too few women.” Kaplan believes more female attorneys will advance to partnership and leadership slots industry-wide as “women help women expand opportunities for advancement. Some of it is business referrals, because women need to be able to bring in business.”

The lawyers on this year’s list are passionate about opening doors to career and client development opportunities. “Female attorneys need to be given the same opportunities as men. If that happens, then women will knock those opportunities out of the park,” writes one honoree.

Another called for law firm clients to be change agents by ensuring women “are in the room where business is awarded.” Writes a third honoree: “Educate men about the importance of sponsoring and mentoring women. They need to ask themselves: ‘When I go to a pitch, do I only bring people who look like me? If the answer is yes, they need to change that’.”

Attorneys also called for better support of the career/family juggle. “Many new mothers struggle with continuing their careers and being home. A law firm that is more flexible with facetime and focuses on productivity and outcome will be more successful in retaining the talent they originally hired,” writes one honoree. Law firms and corporate legal departments, adds another, “should seek ways to permit flexible hours and the ability to work from home so that working mothers can remain on partnership tracks or earn career advancement.”

These sentiments are born from statistics that highlight the pressing need for improvement. Data still shows that fewer women than men become equity partners and get elected to law firm leadership positions.

In its 2018 Survey on the Retention and Promotion of Women in Law Firms, the National Association of Women Lawyers reported that females comprise 47% of associates but only 30% of non-equity partners and 20% of equity partners; figures that have barely budged in the past decade. As in previous NAWL surveys, women start off in essentially equal numbers as men at the entry level—with relatively equal compensation, billing rates, and hours worked as associates—but later fail to reach senior ranks in greater numbers.

In response, the American Bar Association in 2017 launched a two-year initiative to research possible contributing factors to the steady loss over time of experienced female lawyers at law firms. The ABA’s goal is to make empirically based recommendations for policies that promote retention and eliminate the attribution gender gap.

Those are issues that already are being tackled by the women on our list, 39% of whom hold governance roles such as practice leader chair or co-chairs, a committee seat or an executive committee member. These leadership positions matter. Compensation and promotion decisions are made by lawyers who hold governance committee seats.

The NAWL report notes that women make up 25% of firm governance roles, 22% of firm-wide managing partners, 20% of office-level managing partners and 22% of practice group leaders. Those statistics represent progress, but they are not 50%. As NAWL says, “the numbers still lag behind the representation of women in the legal profession as a whole.”

With so many of the female legal luminaries on this year’s list pushing for change, these statistics are sure to improve. These women have strong ideas about how to fix what’s broken. In the words of one of our Crain’s honorees, “women must rise to the top and break through the cycle of underrepresentation to become law firm leaders, general counsels and CEOs to truly achieve parity.”

The profiles in this report are drawn from submitted nomination materials as well as from Crain’s New York Business editorial. No lawyer paid to be featured. The 2019 list of Notable Women in Law celebrates an exceptional pool of talented female attorneys in the New York City metropolitan area. Please join us in congratulating an outstanding 2019 class.

Greenberg Traurig congratulates our own Barbara Kaplan and Kristen Lonergan on their recognition as two of Crain’s Notable Women in Law.

Your vision and commitment to clients, colleagues, and the community has earned you the respect as trusted leaders and role models.

Greenberg Traurig is committed to its women lawyers’ success, which includes a firmwide women’s affinity group encompassing recruiting, retention, and business development. The firm regularly collaborates with like-minded organizations to address these issues on a broader scale in a variety of industries and communities. Greenberg Traurig also takes thoughtful action to address issues such as maintaining a healthy work-life balance, breaking the glass ceiling, mentoring, taking charge of your health, and giving back to the community.
ROBIN ADELSTEIN
Head of antitrust and competition
NORTON ROSE FULBRIGHT

Before joining Norton Rose Fulbright, Robin Adelstein served as a key legal official for large-scale firms including health care giant Novartis and alcohol beverage leader Diageo. She brings this wealth of experience to her work with the firm, where she litigates complex commercial disputes, class actions and multi-jurisdictional cases before U.S. federal and state courts. Companies trust Adelstein to advise them on antitrust issues arising in mergers and acquisitions, joint ventures and trade association activities. Adelstein also shares her knowledge as a frequent speaker at summits and panel discussions focused on health care and life sciences.

In 1886, New York State admitted the first woman, Kate Stoneman, to its bar association.

ANTONIA APPS
Partner
MILBANK TWEED HADLEY & MCCLOY

A former federal prosecutor and lauded trial attorney, Antonia Apps represents financial institutions, corporations and executives in a range of regulatory enforcement proceedings, white-collar criminal investigations and complex commercial litigation. She also advises hedge funds on securities trading and compliance matters. Prior to joining Milbank in 2014, Apps spent more than seven years as an assistant U.S. attorney, where she led some of the government’s highest-profile securities fraud and insider trading cases. Apps also teaches a course on white collar criminal law and procedure at Harvard Law School and is a frequent speaker and commentator on white collar and securities enforcement issues.

RENATA ANDOH
Partner
SHEPPARD MULLIN

Along with her role as a member of the business trials practice group, Renata Andoh counsels clients on practical and legal issues relating to forensic preservation and analysis of electronic devices. Her broad-ranging litigation practice has given her substantial trial and arbitration hearing experience, including acting as lead counsel in complex commercial matters. Her clients have included firms in the entertainment, financial, manufacturing, technology and pharmaceutical industries. Recently, Andoh was named vice-chair of Sheppard Mullin’s firmwide diversity and inclusion committee, a group that gives attorneys of color a forum to address issues of interest within the firm and the broader legal community.

MICHELE ARBEEY
Partner
WINDELS MARX LANE & MITTENDORF

Michele Arbeeby concentrates her practice on real estate finance, municipal finance and trade finance transactions. Arbeeby maintains a successful track record of representing financial institutions and nonprofits in all aspects of secured and unsecured financing, including acquisition loans, construction loans and revolving and term loans. She also represents financial institutions and developers in affordable housing transactions. In 2017, Arbeeby spearheaded the formation of Windels Marx Women, a group of legal professionals who organize around business development, networking and mentoring opportunities. She was also the leading force behind the firm’s establishment of a scholarship devoted to advancing diversity in law schools and the workplace.

SONIA BAIN
Partner
LEIGHTON PAISNER

Sonia Bain is a transactional commercial real estate lawyer who represents developers, retail companies, landlords and tenants, hotel groups and family offices. Bain is an expert in matters ranging from acquisitions, dispositions and development to the financing and leasing of numerous types of commercial real estate assets. She is a frequently sought-after speaker, moderator and panelist on topics related to the real estate industry. A passionate supporter of fostering the success of talented women in the workforce, Bain also co-chairs the WX Mentorship Committee, an organization that promotes and supports women in commercial real estate.

Leora Ben-Ami counsels her clients in all areas of technology, including biotechnology, medical devices, pharmaceuticals and chemistry, mechanical devices and electronics. She has tried a number of jury trials as lead counsel and has extensive appellate experience, including arguing before the U.S. Court of Appeals for the Federal Circuit. Her work in the field has led to her recognition by a number of respected organizations, including The American Lawyer and The National Law Journal. She frequently speaks at conferences and seminars on patent law, including talks at the New Jersey Intellectual Property Association and the Sedona Conference.

Lynda Bennett
Partner
LOWENSTEIN SANDLER

With more than 20 years of commercial litigation experience, Lynda Bennett litigates, negotiates and resolves complicated disputes with insurers. As chair of the insurance recovery group, she obtains significant recoveries for clients in environmental, asbestos, product liability and professional liability cases. She is a trusted counsel to her clients with respect to contractual insurance requirements, new insurance products, innovative risk-management tools and insurance program assessment. Bennett regularly advises strategic acquirers and private equity funds regarding insurance coverage issues that arise in acquisition and investment transactions. Bennett also founded the Lowenstein Sandler’s Women’s Initiative, a grassroots program designed to empower the firm’s women lawyers.

Lori Bauer
Office Managing Principal
JACKSON LEWIS

After more than 30 years with the firm and nine years as the office litigation manager, Lori Bauer became managing principal of Jackson Lewis’ New York office in 2018. Her extensive experience includes counseling management on a variety of employment matters and handling litigation disputes on behalf of employers before administrative agencies and state and federal courts. As part of her practice, she is a skilled defender of employers in single and multi-plaintiff actions involving claims of discrimination, wrongful discharge and related tort claims. She is also a dedicated member of the American Bar Association and the New York Bar Association.

Andrea Bierstein
Shareholder
SIMMONS HANLY CONROY

Andrea Bierstein has more than three decades of legal experience and is recognized as one of the premier appellate brief-writers and oral advocates in the nation. In her position with the complex litigation department, she focuses her practice on pharmaceutical and commercial litigation, consumer protection class actions and environmental law. She has secured millions of dollars on behalf of her clients over the years, including a $32 million settlement for a medical manufacturer. She is also a former law professor and designed and taught an annual civil litigation clinic and second-year law courses at Western New England College Law School.

Laura Barzilai
Partner
SIDLEY AUSTIN

Laura Barzilai puts her more than 30 years of industry experience to work as a transactional and tax controversy lawyer at Sidley Austin, where she co-leads the firm’s global tax practice and is a member of the executive committee. Her clients include Fortune 100 companies, banks, insurance companies and private equity and sovereign wealth funds. Her practice is largely devoted to federal income tax matters, advising clients in the areas of domestic and cross-border mergers and acquisitions, joint ventures and restructurings. Barzilai is also a member and the previous New York chair of the firm’s Committee on Retention and Promotion of Women.

 Clients need to push for diverse representation. If clients insisted on equality in representation and leadership in law firms, the entire profession would change nearly overnight.”

Make mentoring and business development opportunities available to associates at an earlier stage in their career and encourage them to take advantage of these opportunities.”
Offer flexibility for women to resume a ‘partnership track’ career path after having children, so that having and raising children does not mean women must sacrifice their career objectives.”

Hon. Sonia Sotomayor was the first Hispanic (man or woman) appointed to the federal bench in New York.

FRANCES BIVENS
DAVIS POLK & WARDWELL

As part of Davis Polk’s litigation department, Frances Bivens regularly acts as lead counsel in a broad range of high-stakes commercial litigation matters in courts around the country and arbitrations across the globe. She puts her electrical engineering degree to work by specializing in litigation involving complex technical issues. Bivens is also committed to pro bono work and recently collaborated with the Office of the Public Defender in the Eastern District of New York to address sexual assaults against female detainees. Additionally, she is a member of Brown University’s Advisory Council on Diversity and the Lawyers’ Committee for Civil Rights Under Law’s Board of Directors.

KIMBERLY BROWN BLACKLOW
Partner
CLEARY GOTTLIEB STEEN & HAMILTON

Since joining Cleary Gottlieb in 1994, Kimberly Brown Blacklow has served her clients in real estate and other asset-based finance transactions, as well as structured finance and capital markets transactions in both the U.S. and abroad. She regularly represents both lenders and borrowers in intercreditor agreements, credit tenant lease financing and other types of financing transactions. She is also well-versed in matters involving real estate acquisitions and joint ventures. In addition to her regular practice, Blacklow has significant pro bono experience, including guiding the Lower Manhattan Cultural Council in establishing The Arts Center at Governors Island in New York City.

ELISE BLOOM
Partner
PROSKAUER ROSE

With a career spanning more than 30 years, Elise Bloom is an employment lawyer known for handling high-profile cases on behalf of some of the nation’s most prominent companies. Over the course of her career, Bloom has represented more companies in class actions challenging internships, trainees and volunteers than any firm in the country, and her precedent-setting argument on behalf of Fox Searchlight Pictures helped determine the standard for evaluating the legality of unpaid internships. Outside of Proskauer, Bloom is a board member of the Women in Law Empowerment Forum, a platform that educates and provides networking opportunities for women in law.

LAUREN BOGLIVI
Partner
PROSKAUER ROSE

Having spent her entire legal career at Proskauer, Lauren Boglivi has developed a successful transactional practice on behalf of companies, private equity sponsors and family offices. Her array of experience includes handling mergers and acquisitions, buyouts and related financings, joint ventures and growth and seed investment. Foreign private issuers and U.S. public companies rely on Boglivi to manage their SEC compliance matters. Outside of her cutting-edge legal work, Boglivi sits on the board of Women in Need, an organization that helps homeless women and children in New York City succeed on their own by providing them with housing, services and programs.

SUSAN BODINE
Partner
COWAN DEBETS ABRAHAMS & SHEPPARD

Susan Bodine is the go-to representative of a diverse clientele in the motion picture, television and digital media industries as co-head of the firm’s entertainment group. As part of her practice, she counsels those clients in all phases of development, finance, production and distribution of movies, television programs and new media properties. She is also committed to pro bono work and recently handled an asylum case on behalf of an African immigrant for the Hebrew Immigrant Aid Society, an organization serving refugees and other displaced persons around the world. She also provides pro bono services to entrepreneurs and artists through her involvement with the IFP Made in NY Media Center and Creative Capital.

STEPHANIE BRESLOW
Partner
SCHULTE ROTH & ZABEL

As co-head of the investment management group and a member of the executive committee and operating committee, Stephanie Breslow maintains a diverse practice that includes investment management and partnerships and securities. She also co-heads a team of cross-practice lawyers that advise private investment funds and other investors on the implications of sponsoring initial coin offerings, conducting transactions involving cryptocurrencies and managing and investing in funds that involve cryptocurrencies. Highly involved in the New York City community, Breslow is a member of the board of trustees of the Joyce Theater and a member of the Board of Visitors of Columbia Law School.

ERICA BUCKLEY
Partner
NIXON PEABODY

Erica Buckley leads the co-operatives and condominium practice at Nixon Peabody, where she oversees transactional matters and government investigations involving real estate securities. An expert on the Martin Act, a New York blue-sky law that governs real estate securities, Buckley’s clients range from prominent New York City developers to startup nonprofits. Drawing on her experience as former chief of the Real Estate Finance Bureau, Buckley advises clients on meeting regulatory requirements while minimizing risk to their properties. Buckley is also credited with establishing the legal department at the Urban Homesteading Assistance Board, a nonprofit that helps create and support self-help housing.

Susanna Buergel is a sought-after litigator for complex securities and financial services litigation and regulatory matters. Co-chair of the firm’s preeminent securities litigation and enforcement group, Buergel also has extensive intellectual property experience, counseling and litigating on behalf of clients in copyright, trademark and patent disputes. Buergel has also been involved in a number of pro bono matters in the city. At Paul Weiss, she supervises a team that helps transgender New Yorkers file petitions to change their names legally. Over the past two years, the team has been responsible for assisting more than 40 individuals with these name change petitions.

"Diversity and inclusion programs must have genuine support from the top in order to succeed.”

Jacqueline Bushwack has successfully defended universities, pharmaceutical companies and hospitals in a variety of suits alleging liability, malpractice and violations of labor law. Along with a proficiency in managing all phases of discovery and trial preparation—frequently leading to clients obtaining dismissals before trial or favorable jury verdicts—Bushwack maintains a stellar track record of resolving cases through mediation. She is also active in the American Bar Association, where she co-chairs the Work/Life Management Sub-Committee. A respected author, Bushwack’s most recent book, “Her Story: Lessons in Success from Lawyers Who Live It,” was published in May 2017.

In her position as co-chair of Fisher Phillips’ pay equity practice group, Kathleen Caminiti is a skilled litigator in employment matters ranging from individual plaintiff discrimination claims to wage and hour class and collective actions. She has successfully defended her clients in cases alleging civil rights violations, discrimination, sexual harassment and whistleblowing. She also assists clients in their liability prevention efforts by conducting employee training, preparing handbooks and implementing policies. Recognized as an authority on issues surrounding labor law, Caminiti is frequently quoted by major media outlets and has published numerous articles that have appeared in The New York Law Journal, New Jersey Business, New Jersey Lawyer Magazine and Practical Law Institute.

Ting Chen advises clients on mergers and acquisitions, corporate governance and activism and takeover defense as part of Cravath’s corporate department. In recent years, Chen has served as a valuable asset to Kraft in the spinoff of its $30 billion North American grocery business, DreamWorks Animation in its $4.1 billion sale to Comcast, British American Tobacco in its $97 billion merger with Reynolds American and The Washington Post’s sale of its newspaper publishing businesses to Jeff Bezos. Among her other notable past clients, Chen has represented high-profile companies including Starbucks, Goldman Sachs, BDT Capital Partners and IBM.

Sylvia Chin is known for her ability to propose creative solutions for unique situations. Her practice involves navigating complicated transactions in capital markets, project financing and equipment leasing. Chin is a dedicated member of a number of professional organizations. She chairs the First Judicial District of the New York Bar Foundation and serves as president of the Asian American Law Fund of New York. She is also focused on guiding the next generation of legal professionals, teaching as an adjunct associate professor at Fordham University School of Law and frequently lecturing on corporate finance topics.

Jennifer Chu is a key member of the firm’s mergers and acquisitions and private equity groups, where she advises corporations and private equity firms in mergers and acquisitions, joint ventures and other corporate matters, with a particular focus on transactions in the health care and insurance industries. Chu actively speaks and publishes on mergers and acquisitions, private equity and health care topics. Outside of the firm, Chu serves on the board of Practicing Attorneys for Law Students, a nonprofit focused on creating opportunities for minority law students and early career lawyers, where she is also an active participant in its mentoring program.

Nancy Chung has more than 20 years of experience handling complex disputes and investigations and crisis management situations. As co-head of the firm’s litigation group, her caseload includes commercial, white-collar criminal defense, securities and bankruptcy litigation matters for financial institutions and asset management firms with a global footprint. She is a trusted adviser for leading investment funds and global financial institutions in managing and assessing their litigation risks. Her experience in the field and positive results for clients have earned her the honor of a 2018 Rainmaker” by the Minority Corporate Counsel Association.

At NYU Langone, Anta Cissé-Green is responsible for advising the development department on agreements for gifts and bequests, trust and estate administration and nonprofit legal and taxation issues. She is also an active member of her community, serving as vice president of programs for the Metropolitan Black Bar Association and as a member of the advisory council for the Foundation for Letters, a nonprofit that promotes improved college access by providing urban schools with a range of academic and enrichment programs. She was recently honored by the New York Law Journal for her longtime commitment to providing pro bono legal services.

Elizabeth Cooper has built a diverse practice focused on mergers, acquisitions and other corporate transactions. A member of the firm’s corporate department, Cooper regularly represents private equity sponsors in a broad range of investments, joint ventures, recapitalizations and other business combination transactions. Her work in the field has been widely recognized by leading publications, and she was recently named Private Equity Lawyer of the Year at The Deal Awards. She is also a dedicated member of the Association of the Bar of New York City.
Magda Cruz leads the appellate practice at Belkin Burden and has played an instrumental role in its placement among the top New York real estate boutique firms. With a career spanning nearly three decades, Cruz specializes in real estate matters, contract disputes and complex litigation matters. Outside of her practice, Cruz is committed to raising funds to support outreach initiatives to bring classical music, instrumental instruction and performance opportunities to emerging young musicians in underserved communities in New York City, and she serves on the boards of the Chamber Music Center of New York and the Brooklyn Youth Music Project.

Margaret Dale is a versatile first-chair litigator who handles complex business disputes for clients across a variety of industries. She also heads the litigation department’s data privacy and cybersecurity practice group and regularly handles regulatory investigations and class action lawsuits stemming from data breaches. Dale maintains an active pro bono practice focusing on issues affecting women, children and veterans. She chairs the Board of Directors of the Center for Family Representation, a nonprofit dedicated to keeping children out of the foster care system, and as a member of the Board of Directors of Volunteer Lawyers for the Arts.

Jennifer Fiorica Delgado brings her extensive experience in a range of capital markets disputes to her role as a member of Lowenstein’s capital markets litigation group. Her clients are primarily members of the “buy-side” and include asset managers, hedge funds and institutional investors. In addition to her litigation practice, Delgado devotes a significant amount of time to pro bono work. She recently represented a disabled woman living in public housing who brought disability discrimination claims against the New York City Housing Authority. She is also highly involved with the Financial Women’s Association, an organization dedicated to developing future leaders in every sector of the financial community.

Congratulation to Crain’s Notable Women in Law.

Cravath is proud to have Julie North, Judge Katherine Forrest (fmr.) and Ting Chen among this year’s distinguished honorees for their work across the antitrust, litigation and mergers and acquisitions fields.
At Davis Wright Tremaine, Marcia Paul concentrates her burgeoning practice on a range of media and intellectual property litigation and counseling. Her clients include some of the nation’s major media companies, who rely on Paul to handle legal issues involving copyright, trademark, libel and advertising matters. She is an experienced litigator in complicated situations that involve multinational and cross-border issues. During her time with Davis Wright Tremaine, Paul has tried a number of cases in state and federal courts around the country, along with complex litigation before various arbitral tribunals—including jury trials—across various industries.

As head of O’Melveny’s life-science litigation practice, Lisa Pensabene handles high-stakes patent litigation for companies in the pharmaceutical and biotechnology industries. She has worked on cases involving drugs for treatments spanning from cancers, HIV and diabetes to cardiovascular disease and neurological disorders. Pensabene also oversees nearly 100 employees as leader of the firm’s intellectual property practice. In November 2017, she co-founded the Women in IP Network, a group that now boasts more than 300 members and provides an opportunity for women in the field of intellectual property to network and enhance their skills.

Donna Parisi is the global head of Shearman & Sterling’s finance business unit. A skilled practitioner and negotiator, she advises clients on derivatives, structured products, securitization, capital markets and commodities matters. Parisi also spearheads the firm’s FinTech Foundry program, which supports the activities of the firm’s clients in the financial technology industry. Parisi has long been a champion for the full inclusion of women in the workplace. She plays a leading role in Shearman & Sterling’s global Women’s Initiative, which enhances the firm’s commitment to diversity and inclusiveness. She also supports the Women’s Initiative for Success, Excellence and Retention, the firm’s associate-run inclusion network for women.

Congratulations to Kathleen McLeod Caminiti and Melissa Osipoff on their selection to the Crain’s New York Business Notable Women in Law

At Fisher Phillips, labor and employment law is all we do. Kathleen and Melissa represent employers by providing practical business solutions to their workplace legal issues.
Stacey Rappaport is an accomplished litigator who has developed a track record of success in complex financial transaction cases during her more than 20 years at Milbank. A member of the firm’s litigation and arbitration group, she represents some of the nation’s most distinguished corporations and financial institutions. In 2018, Rappaport was elected to Milbank’s global executive committee, making her the first female member in the firm’s 152-year history. She also serves as a board member of Sanctuary for Families, a service provider and advocate for survivors of domestic violence, sex trafficking and other forms of gender violence.

Rebecca Rettig is one of the few female litigators in her field, a complex commercial litigator focused on legal and regulatory matters relating to digital assets and blockchain, the technology at the heart of Bitcoin and other virtual currencies. Though the blockchain industry is young and litigation relating to these matters is relatively new, Rettig has successfully argued cases across several industries, including finance, pharmaceuticals and technology. Rettig is a member of Global Digital Finance, an industry body that drives the acceleration and adoption of digital finance technologies to support the next era of digital commerce.

In recent years, D. Hara Perkins has helped structure some of the most significant neighborhood-transforming real estate transactions in New York City, including Essex Crossing, a planned mixed-use development on the Lower East Side, and Cornell Tech’s 12-acre campus on Roosevelt Island. Perkins has negotiated low-income housing tax credit transactions valued at more than $1 billion on behalf of her developer and investor clients. An expert in the fields of housing and economic development, Perkins, who co-chairs the firm’s multifamily housing industry group, speaks regularly on the trends and changes that are affecting the real estate industry.

As co-chair of Phillips Nizer’s real estate practice, Lisa Radetsky focuses on preparing offering plans for vacant and occupied residential and mixed-use properties. She works alongside government agencies to secure approval for those projects. An in-demand attorney whose cases typically last between three to five years, Radetsky regularly represents nonprofit organizations and owners of commercial buildings that seek to convert their buildings into condominiums. Radetsky has also served on the New York State Bar Associations’ committee on cooperatives and condominiums and on the alumna advisory board for the reorganization of Gamma Phi Beta sorority at Columbia University, which had been dormant since 1911.

Congratulations,
Regina E. Faul, chair of the employment and labor practice, Lisa R. Radetsky, co-chair of the real estate practice, and Helene M. Freeman, partner in the entertainment and intellectual property practices, on being honored among Crain’s Notable Women in Law.

SARA RUBENSTEIN
General counsel, senior vice president
CONTINENTAL VENTURES

Sara Rubenstein’s 17 years in the real estate and construction industries have given her a broad range of experience in real estate finance, development, sales and acquisitions. At Continental Ventures, she oversees all legal work and advises the company in complex real estate and financing transactions, the lending platform and strategic business decisions. Recently, she formed and structured a new logistics platform for the company, which has grown exponentially since its launch less than one year ago. She is also actively involved with the Women’s Executive Circle, where she has served as a mentor for young professional women and speaks regularly at real estate industry events.

ELIZABETH SACKSTEDER
Partner
PAUL WEISS RIFKIND WHARTON & GARRISON

A prolific litigator, Elizabeth Sacksteder has represented global banks in virtually every significant category of litigation and regulatory investigation arising out of the financial crisis. She has also represented major life and property-casualty insurers in a wide array of matters, including regulatory investigations and policyholder class actions. Sacksteder shares her knowledge and experience with students as a lecturer at Columbia Law School, teaching a course on advanced civil procedure. She is also an active member of the board of the New York-based Legal Action Center, and in 2012 received the organization’s Arthur Liman Public Interest Award.

RICKI ROER
Partner
WILSON ELSER

Along with her role as regional managing partner of Wilson Elser’s New York office, Ricki Roer chairs the firm’s employment and labor practice, where she leads a team of more than 150 attorneys across the United States. She is also a member of the firm’s Office of the Chairman. Over the course of her career, Roer has litigated thousands of cases in state and federal courts at the trial and appellate levels on behalf of a variety of clients, ranging from multinational corporations to nonprofit organizations. A recognized authority in the industry, Roer is consistently called upon to lecture on issues of employment discrimination and labor law.

NINA ROKET
Partner
OLSHAN FROME WLOSOKY

Nina Roket has developed a keen understanding of commercial real estate law, specifically leasing, conveyancing and finance transactions, over the course of her nearly 20 year career in the industry. She is a trusted adviser to clients across the U.S. in sophisticated transactions, including mezzanine and preferred equity financings. As founder and chair of Olshan’s Women’s Committee, a group that serves as a networking, business development and mentoring platform for the firm’s women lawyers and their clients and colleagues, Roket has been at the forefront of advancing women both within the legal profession and other respective industries.

Karen Scanna
One of Crain’s Notable Women in Law

Stroock & Stroock & Lavan LLP
New York  |  Miami  |  Los Angeles  |  Washington, D.C.
www.stroock.com
For more than 23 years, Karen Scanna has been at the forefront of development in all five boroughs of New York City, working on several of the most complex and high-profile real estate transactions in the city’s history. Private developers acquiring city-owned property often seek Scanna’s guidance in navigating the city’s competitive bid process. Outside of her work with the firm, Scanna focuses on mentoring women in real estate. She has been an active member of WX—New York Women Executives in Real Estate for more than a decade and mentored numerous women through both group sessions and one-on-one engagement.

Charan Sandhu is a key member of Weil’s technology and IP transactions practice, where she uses her significant experience to represent clients in matters relating to technology transfer and the development, acquisition and use of technology and intellectual property. Sandhu is consistently recognized as a leader in her field by respected organizations including Legal 500 US and Super Lawyers, and was recently named Minority Female Lawyer of the Year by Chamber USA. Sandhu is highly involved with Weil’s pro bono efforts and regularly represents Kids in Need of Defense, a group that protects children who enter the U.S. immigration system alone.

Kara Schechter-Rakowski joined Belkin Burden in 1991 and was elevated to partner just eight years later. Since that time, she has dedicated her career to representing owners in matters involving rent regulation, affordable housing, fair housing, anti-discrimination and anti-harassment. As co-head of the firm’s administrative department, Schechter-Rakowski is the first woman partner to head a department in the firm. Through the human rights practice that she introduced to the firm, Schechter-Rakowski has used her expertise to educate property owners, managing agents and their staff and real estate brokers in an effort to prevent discrimination and harassment in housing and employment.

Claudia Salomon works closely with companies and states in complex arbitration matters as global co-chair of Latham & Watkins’ international arbitration practice. She also helms the expansion of the firm’s investment treaty arbitration and international commercial arbitration capabilities to meet clients’ growing needs. Additionally, Salomon was the first female U.S. member appointed to the International Chamber of Commerce International Court of Arbitration, an institution that aims to resolve international commercial disputes. In June 2018, she was appointed to the prestigious position of vice president of the Court. Salomon also leads a range of pro bono matters, including several cases focused on voting rights issues.

Female litigators find their voices
New efforts to give young women their day in court

Janice Mac Avoy, co-head of the real estate litigation practice at Fried, Frank, Harris, Shriver & Jacobson, recalls chatting with another senior female attorney about a case that she knew her firm would not win. Mac Avoy’s colleague made an eye-opening suggestion—if the case was unwinnable, why not let a female associate tackle the oral arguments as a learning experience?

“I thought wow, why didn’t I think of that?” said Mac Avoy. “We knew we would lose, so no one would blame her. It was a great experience for her, and it saved the client money to have the associate, not me, argue the case. Not every motion is the most important thing in the world.”

More partners are giving female litigators the opportunity to shine in the courtroom. The impetus is a bombshell 2017 report published by the New York State Bar Association. “If Not Now, When?” is packed with data on the lack of female voices in courtrooms and in alternative dispute resolutions.

Female attorneys in speaking roles account for just about a quarter of counsel who appear in state and federal courts in New York. They had 24.9% of lead counsel roles and 27.6% of additional counsel roles. But in complex commercial cases, the percentage of female lead counsel—31.6% in one-party cases—shrunk to 26.4% in two-party cases and just 19.5% in cases with five or more litigants. “The more complex the case,” reads the report, “the less likely that a woman appeared as lead counsel.”

So what’s to be done? Female lawyers must conduct depositions early on in their careers. They should participate in court instead of sitting at the counsel table while the senior partner argues the matter. When that happens, female litigators gain experience, and court proceedings are more efficient, said Nancy Kestenbaum, a Covington & Burling partner and former federal prosecutor.

“Instead of senior lawyers turning for answers to the female associate who took the deposition, the judge gets those answers efficiently, and it is an opportunity for younger lawyers to speak. It’s a win-win,” said Kestenbaum.

Senior litigators are coaching young women to overcome their fear of asking to take on a case or lead a deposition.

“Women need to be more vocal,” said Una Dean, a Fried, Frank partner and former federal prosecutor. “They struggle with fear of failure: ‘Can I do this?’ The critical part is leaning in even when you have doubts you can do it, because that’s what your male counterparts are doing.”

The NYBA report makes specific recommendations that New York judges have taken to heart.

“Judges in the Southern District now ask if there isn’t a woman on the litigation team, why not, and if there is, why isn’t she speaking? That is really powerful,” said Mac Avoy.

“Judges are saying ‘I want to hear other voices,’” added Mary Beth Forshaw, a Simpson Thacher & Bartlett litigation partner. “The judiciary in New York is leading the charge, making sure women are taking the first or second chair. Everyone needs to stop and think, is there a woman on our roster?”

The path to success
Leadership skills get handed down to the next generation of female lawyers

In the legal profession, the gender gap is characterized by fewer women in top governance and practice leadership posts; less access to senior partners who influence client exposure; and the juggle between family and career that often falls more heavily on women. The 114 attorneys on the 2019 list of Notable Women in Law have responded with an arsenal of techniques to lessen that gap for younger women by developing their leadership, legal and business development skills.

“You have to develop leadership skills, and the only way to do so is if someone says, ‘you should be on the finance committee to get those skills,’” said Mary Beth Forshaw, a Simpson Thacher & Bartlett partner in her seventh term on the firm’s executive committee. Younger women must be encouraged to run for these positions, adds Forshaw, who recalls how she put her name into the ring at a relatively early age. “There’s a hesitancy, and that needs to change to ‘heck, I can do this,’” she said. Propelled by such support, there are two younger women on the executive committee.

Other skill-development tools are women’s initiatives—formal networking groups that offer programs on career advancement and professional development—as well as informal women-led alternatives to the old boys network. Both can help female associates access high-visibility cases and relationships with key mentors. Research suggests, however, that while women’s initiatives are influential, they are by no means equivalent to elevating more women to governance posts.

“Despite the now universal adoption of women’s initiatives,” according to a 2018 survey by the National Association of Women Lawyers, “there is little evidence that these initiatives have led to substantial increases in the representation of women at the highest levels of the law firm.”

Still, serious mentoring goes on at women’s initiatives. At Shearman & Sterling, the Women’s Initiative for Success, Excellence and Retention, or WISER, associates learn to appreciate the business side of law. Getting a handle on P&L, overhead, compensation, and managing people are critical skills for leadership roles—and deepen a lawyer’s knowledge of her clients’ businesses, said Donna Parisi, the global head of Shearman & Sterling’s finance business unit and a former member of the firm’s executive committee.

“Women need to understand the business side of law and how that can drive value for clients,” said Parisi.

Nina Roket, founder and chair of the Women’s Committee at Olshan Frome Wolosky, makes sure the initiative polishes business generation skills. A co-administrative partner at the firm, Roket said she... learned that lesson early in her career after joining organizations that nurtured female client relationships. “It opened up my eyes: Guys do this all the time and refer work to each other,” said Roket.

The significance of female referral networks has skyrocketed in recent years. They develop a pipeline of talent that can be tapped to meet new benchmarks for gender diversity, such as a recent California law that sets minimum gender-based requirements for boards of directors. The networks also help law firms respond to client pressure to enhance diversity among outside counsel.

“We expect our law firms to assign diverse teams to all CBS matters for which they have been engaged,” said Naomi Waltman, CBS Corp.’s executive vice president and associate general counsel, litigation. “To periodically assess compliance, we track the time spent by diverse lawyers on our matters. We also expect the diverse team members to play a meaningful role in the particular CBS matter.”

Female referral networks essentially create databases of qualified women. “It’s so important to have that old girl network so that we are advocating for each other,” said Lori Lesser, a partner at Simpson Thacher & Bartlett. New “old girl networks” have emerged in specific practice areas where female attorneys have an edge over the traditional cluster of older white men. That includes cybersecurity, where women like Lesser, who co-chairs Simpson Thacher’s privacy and cybersecurity practice, entered a tech area that wasn’t dominated by older men in the early 1990s. For a younger generation that grew up around technology, it was a legal arena where female associates could punch above their weight. “You didn’t have an entrenched set of experts. Everyone had an equal playing field,” Lesser recalled.

Privacy law is also a hot area with less competition from more senior attorneys. “It’s been a great opportunity for younger lawyers,” said Jessica Lee, a Loeb & Loeb partner who focuses on privacy and intellectual property issues. “It helps that they can understand how the tech works, because they grew up with AI, blockchain and VR.”

Lee recalls a recent panel on blockchain and virtual reality populated entirely by female attorneys. “What a great opportunity for women,” said Lee. “The old boy network hasn’t had time to creep in.”

Women helping women is key to mentorship in the wake of the #MeToo movement. There is talk of male attorneys who refuse to be alone in a room with female associates. Given the volume of men who control high-profile assignments and client interactions, such hesitancy threatens successful mentorships.

Conversely, sexual misconduct investigations have become a key practice area for female employment lawyers and former prosecutors. “Many women are involved because of the sensitivity around these investigations,” said Una Dean, a former federal prosecutor and partner at Fried, Frank, Harris, Shriver & Jacobson.

CBS’s board asked ex-prosecutor Nancy Kestenbaum of Covington & Burling to co-lead an independent investigation into sexual misconduct allegations against former Chairman and Chief Executive Leslie Moonves. She had led previous investigations involving such institutions as Choate Rosemary Hall and the Brearley School. The #MeToo movement, said Kestenbaum, “definitely has had an impact on my practice. There’s no doubt there’s been an uptick, as more companies grapple with allegations.

Women in particular are interested in the practice area. “I have no trouble staffing these cases,” added Kestenbaum. “They are interesting, and they have a social impact.”

“The more we see women in positions of power, the more we see this as a matter of course. And as women move up the ranks of power we can begin to address disparities.”
